NLRB Decides on Court Action to Force 5 Day Mine Week

Unfair Labor Practices Is Basis of Suit

Lewis Not in Good Faith, Denham Says

Washington, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, said today he is applying for a court order to put coal miners back on a normal five-day work week.

Denham said a complaint charging John L. Lewis and his miners union with unfair labor practices is the basis for the court action.

Denham said his aides are going into court this afternoon to apply for a temporary injunction.

Calls For Hearing
This type of application calls for a hearing to be set by the court before any order is issued.

Denham said that he is not asking for a temporary restraining order—the kind of legal proceeding which calls for immediate action by the court.

Conceivably, it might be weeks before the court would act.

Denham's complaint charges that Lewis has been failing to bargain in good faith, with the coal operators.

The Taft-Hartley law requires bargaining in good faith and also permits the NLRB counsel to seek court orders barring "unfair practices" by management or a union.

Called Unfair Practice

In a series of complaints to Denham last December, mine operators said the three-day mining week was an "unfair practice" intended to coerce them into signing an illegal contract with Lewis.

Pressure is growing, too, for President Truman to step in under the T-H law and ask the courts to halt a strike. A group of republican senators renewed at the capitol today their demands that Mr. Truman invoke the T-H law.

Views Outlined

The GOP lawmakers outlined their views to the senate labor committee at hearings on a resolution which would tell Mr. Truman that congress feels he ought to act quickly.

The resolution would not have the force of law.

Leading off for the eight sponsors of the resolution, senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) told the committee that:

1. His information is that two days ago there were 20,000,000 less tons of coal above the ground than there were on March 23, 1948, when Mr. Truman declared a coal emergency.

2. The interstate commerce commission, in restricting coal burning locomotive operations last month, had asserted that "an emergency requiring immediate action exists in all sections of the country."

Hap Arnold's Body Arrives at Capital

Washington, Jan. 18.—(AP)—A transport plane, bearing the five-star insignia of the nation's highest military rank today brought the body of Gen. Henry H. (Hap) Arnold here for burial in Arlington national cemetery.

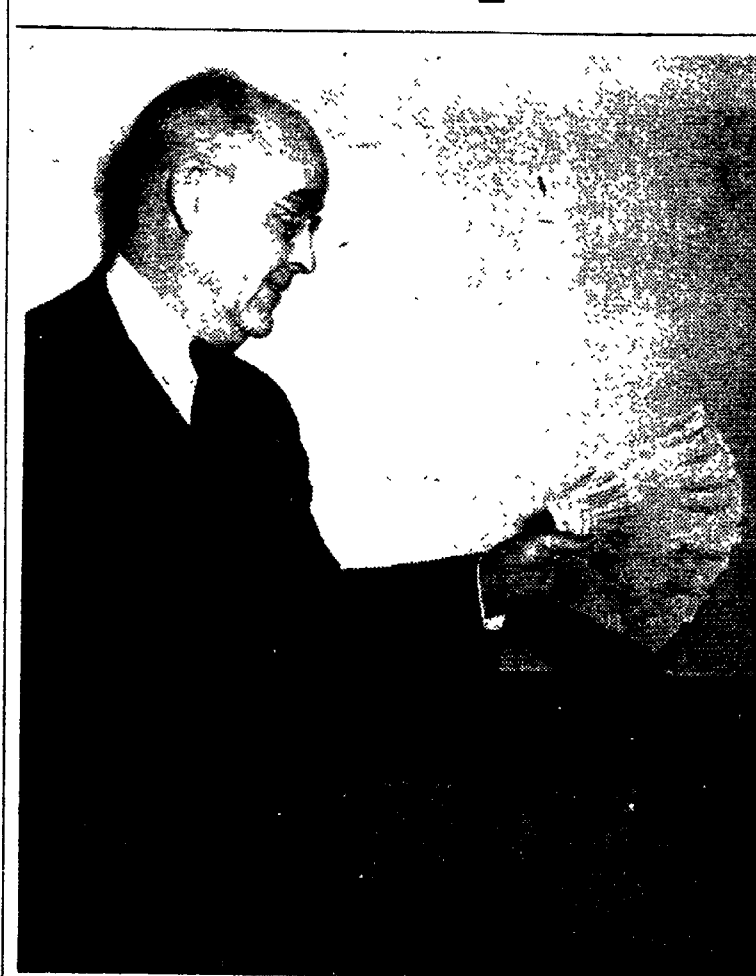

The wartime commander of the air forces died Sunday of a heart attack at his Sonoma, Calif., ranch home. The funeral will be tomorrow.

High civilian and military leaders were standing at attention when the plane rolled softly to a stop at National Airport.

The Air Force band, in formation with the honor guard, played "Ruffles and Flourishes" as the flag-draped casket was removed.

Federal Spending Spree Scathed in C. of C. Talk

A Billion Dollars! How Much Is It? Read It 'n' Weep

One billion dollars! Just how much is it? No one has ever actually seen that amount of money.

But at the Elks Club last night, C. Howard Smith of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce gave an audience of 250 some idea of what a billion dollars is. He put it this way:

If 1,000 men were put to work at $10.00 a day, working seven days a week, holidays and all, it would take them just 254 years for their combined earnings to total a billion dollars.

In this day and age of deficit spending that's something to think over, folks!

Damage Suits In Court Here Involve $2,500

A $500 damage suit involving a 17-year-old opened in front of a jury in Judge George C. Dixon's Circuit court as another $2,000 damage suit was filed with Circuit Clerk John O. Shaulis, Jr.

In the $500 jury trial, Eugene Gallentine, a minor, Rte. 1, has charged that Edith Boyd failed to stop for a stop-sign on Lowell Park road just before an accident July 7, 1949.

Through his attorneys, Dixon, Bales, and Gunner, Gallentine said he was driving south on Rte. 26 near the intersection with Lowell road. He said the defendant was driving southwest on Lowell.

In Counterclaim
Through Warner and Warner, Edith Boyd replied that she was going south on Rte. 26 when Gallentine ran into the rear end of her car. She charged that the horn on Gallentine's car was not working and asked for $1,000 damages in a counterclaim.

The jury will decide both claims at the same time.

Those who will decide who was at fault are Fred Eicholtz, Cornelia Atkinson, Irene Dusing, and Joseph E. Graff, all of Dixon; Clyde E. Phillips, Jr., China; Charles A. Hummel, South Dixon; Roy Hicks, Hamilton township; Verda Hartshorn, Harmon; Ethel

Bob Feller Signs For $45,000 and Gets 'No Bonus'

Cleveland, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Pitcher Bobby Feller, once the highest paid player in baseball history, came to terms with the Cleveland Indians today for an estimated $45,000.

Hank Greenberg, the Tribe's new general manager, declined to disclose the contract's actual terms, but said it represented a "very drastic pay cut."

Feller himself grinned, as usual: "I'm very well satisfied."

Greenberg said the new pay figure actually had been suggested by Feller himself. The cut was described as the largest the pitcher has ever taken.

The contract is Feller's first without attendance bonuses since 1938.

Demand for Steel Shoves Market Up

New York, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Stepped-up demand for steel shoves the entire stock market a shove ahead today.

Buying of steel issues expanded in the face of possible severe curtailment of steel output if the coal strike should continue much longer.

Higher prices for steel issues evidently reflected the widespread expectation that governmental intervention will avoid severe production damage.

Higher prices were paid for U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Republic Steel, Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, J. I. Case and Douglas Aircraft.

Voters Urged To Put Brakes On Lawmakers

Deficit Spending Is Hit; Alertness Urged

By BRYN GRIFFITHS
City Editor, The Telegraph

A crowd of 250 Dixonites and their guests, learned last night in plain down to earth language, that Uncle Sam's deficit spending is nothing more than "a slippery road to misery."

The occasion was a banquet sponsored by the Dixon Chamber of Commerce at the Elks Club, and the speaker was Mr. C. Howard Smith, National Affairs Adviser of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. Every available seat was taken.

The speaker was associated with ECA Director Paul G. Hoffman through the years 1942 and 1945. He indicated in his talk and during a question and answer period that he has an excellent knowledge of domestic and world affairs.

Time For The Brakes

Speaker Smith pointed out that the national debt at the present time is approximately 267 billion dollars and that it is time that the voters "have courage to put on the brakes."

"The more we spend the more taxes we pay, and the more taxes we pay the less freedom we have," said Mr. Smith.

"It is high time," he said, "that we give some serious thought to the kind of legislation our congress passes in order that these freedoms and privileges are not taken away from us. As businessmen we must stop asking for federal money unless absolutely urgent or necessary."

Mr. Smith attributed much of the spending spree by congress on the voters "back home". He pointed out that all members of the lower house of congress are up for election every two years, and to retain their seats they endeavor to cater to the whims and caprices of their constituents.

"What the taxpayers at the lower level seem to forget is that the United States government does not create wealth. It gets its money through taxation and every taxpayer must share in the cost of government," said Mr. Smith.

Smith pleaded with his listeners

Republicans To Win In '50 Says Chairman

Washington, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Republicans got a prediction from National Chairman Guy G. Gabrielson today that their party will win control of congress in November.

The occasion was a party gathering, sort of a pocket-size national convention, called to draft a 1950 campaign platform. Gabrielson tied his prediction to an "if" in that connection.

He said that if the GOP comes out with a "definite, sound and convincing" declaration of principles it will strengthen the party in the November voting "and give us once again working majorities in both senate and house."

Steder Will Pay His Wife $20 Each Week

Herbert Steder, Route 3, consented to pay $20 a week support to his wife and four children today in Judge Grover W. Gehant's County court after he was charged with wife and child abandonment by State's Attorney Morey C. Pires.

According to his wife, Carol, Steder deserted her December 16, 1949. Steder did not contest the order of the court and agreed to start payment immediately.

State Earns More Than Two Millions

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 18.—(AP)—The state treasurer's office today reported earnings of $2,831,000 in 1949 through interest on time deposit accounts and investments.

HEAVEN CAN'T WAIT—Promising actress Colleen Townsend created a stir in Hollywood when she announced that she is abandoning her film career to enter theological college in September. "It's no reflection on motion pictures," she said, "but added that she believes true happiness lies in religious work. She has not yet decided whether to become a missionary or a teacher, and still may eventually marry."

Wabash Levee Breaks; Army 'Duck' Is Used in Rescues

Lawrenceville, Ill., Jan. 18.—(AP)—An army "duck" was being used today to rescue families marooned by Wabash river water that poured through four breaks in the Russell-Alison levee.

The levee, on the Illinois side of the Wabash, gave way yesterday, releasing a deluge over a 100,000-acre area already under water.

Little additional damage was done but about 100 families living in a housing project near the municipal airport had to make a run for it.

Some were helped out by the amphibious army vehicle. Others made it on their own.

Between six and 10 families were being evacuated today. They live in a section known as Allison prairie, between here and Vincennes, Ind.

Three of the levee breaks were south of the U. S. highway bridge leading to Vincennes, the fourth was just north of the bridge.

National guardsmen estimated that 250 families had been evacuated from the flooded area before the levee crumbled. The Wabash river was still rising here today despite the levee breaks.

Chrysler Offer Of $100 Pension Is Turned Down

Detroit, Jan. 18.—(AP)—The CIO United Auto Workers, rejecting Chrysler's 100-a-month pension offer, handed the corporation a seven-day strike notice today.

The ultimatum was handed the company at the start of regularly scheduled negotiations today.

There was no immediate comment from the company.

Norman Matthews, UAW Chrysler director, said the union considered Chrysler's pension offer, made late yesterday, "unsound and inadequate."

Total benefits in the offer amount to only about five cents per hour, Matthews said. In a recent pension agreement between the UAW and Ford Motor Company union gains were estimated at 10 cents an hour.

Chrysler has declined to set any figure on the cost of its offer.

Polo Sailor Is Due Back from Overseas

After a four-month cruise in the Mediterranean, Lawrence E. Russell, seaman USN, of Route 1, Polo, Ill., is scheduled to return to Norfolk, Va., February 7 aboard the destroyer USS John W. Weeks.

The Weeks has been operating with the Sixth Task Fleet overseas and all personnel were afforded the opportunity to visit France, the Island of Cyprus, Malta, the Free State of Trieste, Italy and the Rock of Gibraltar.

Bandits Take $1,500,000 in Daring Holdup

Nation's Biggest Robbery a Puzzle

Boston, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Crack FBI agents joined today in a man-hunt for a bandit gang that got away with $1,500,000—a million dollars of it in cash—in one of the biggest robberies in the nation's history.

A spokesman for Brink's, Inc., operators of the money transportation firm robbed, said a $100,000 reward would be offered for capture of the bandits.

"We have not worked out the details of setting up the reward yet," he said. "But we will offer this reward."

Working smoothly, the robbers escaped last night without leaving a single clue. Hours later, Police Supt. Edward J. Fallon said "we have little or nothing to work on."

Eight suspects were being held but police officials indicated they had little to pin on them—at this

ROBBER'S DELIGHT

Boston, Jan. 18.—(AP)—

"A robber's delight."

That was the way one veteran detective described last night's million dollar cash holdup at Brink's, Inc., the armored car firm that picks up and delivers payrolls and receipts for most of the city's banks and industry.

Most of the bills were in small denominations — $20, $10, $5, $2, $1.

Detectives may be able to trace some of the money, however.

A Brink's official told police that serial numbers would help as much of the loot was in new bills.

This money, the official explained, was mixed with older bills which can't be tracked down very easily.

time anyway. All except one are ex-convicts rounded up as "types" for such a holdup.

The seven soft-shod gunmen—all wearing Halloween-type masks and navy pea-jackets—left behind another million dollars in cash only because their hands were full.

Like Movie Thriller

Like a movie thriller, they sneaked through six locked doors to reach the vaults of a money transportation firm surprising five cashiers and guards before they could reach for their own shotguns.

An alarm giving description of the desperadoes was sounded along the entire eastern seaboard while this city's police began one of the biggest roundups of underworld characters ever undertaken.

FBI agents and state police joined local police who were under orders to "break this thing up before a new outbreak develops."

FBI agents across the country were alerted because Federal Reserve Bank funds were included in the loot.

Ellis Huit, vice president of the Boston Federal Reserve, said that the transportation firm handles the delivery of money for a number of member banks.

Precision Raid

The gunmen—in a 20-minute precision raid—snatched the money from an open vault in the sprawling waterfront garage of Brink's Inc., a money transportation firm, after gagging and trussing five employees last night.

Along with the million in cash the gangsters grabbed $500,000 in checks.

Polio on Rise In the Nation, O'Connor Says

New York, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Infantile paralysis is on the rise in the United States, Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation For Infantile Paralysis, said today.

Calling an extraordinary session of the foundation trustees tomorrow night, O'Connor said:

"The pattern of polio in this country seems to be changing. Infantile paralysis is on the rise and outbreaks are becoming more general than sporadic. Polio is invading older age groups."

An all-time record of 42,375 persons were stricken with polio in 1949.

Elliott Demands That Court Uphold Sexual Pscopath Law, Compel Its Enforcement

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 18—(AP)—Attorney General Ivan A. Elliott has asked the Illinois Supreme Court to uphold the 1947 criminal sexual pscopath law, and to compel its enforcement.

Elliott asked permission yesterday to apply for an order directing County Judge William G. Juergens of Randolph county to abide by its provisions. Juergens contends that law is unconstitutional. Elliott said and has declared he intends to ignore it.

The statute provides for compulsory mental examination of prisoners convicted of sexual offenses before they are released from the penitentiary. If a prisoner is found mentally unfit, the law calls for his commitment to a state mental hospital.

It is up to the county judge where the prisoner is confined to order the mental test. The Menard state penitentiary comes under Judge Juergens jurisdiction for this purpose.

Elliott called Judge Juergens' objections to the law "unfounded."

The attorney general declared the emergency is so great that unless the court passes upon the question at this time the protection of the general public against scientifically predetermined and medically adjudged criminal sexual pscopaths will be unnecessarily jeopardized.

Elliott said that if Judge Juergens view prevails great numbers of criminal sexual pscopaths will be released upon society contrary to the will of the legislature and in opposition to social medical and legal theory.

Hainan Island Is Safe from Reds, Is Gen. Yueh's Claim

Taipei, Formosa Jan. 18 (AP)—The Nationalist Chinese commander of Hainan island reported tonight that Chiang Kai-shek's airforce and navy had made the impending Red invasion of the island impossible.

The Hainan ground command said the two Nationalist service had sunk more than 2,000 in its craft (mostly junks) missed by the Reds on Luichow peninsula opposite Hainan.

He claimed his own forces were mopping up the remainder of some 17,000 Communist guerrillas who have been in control of central and western portion of the big south China island.

The Hainan commander Gen Hsueh Yueh, refugee governor of Kwangtung province said the mopping up of the guerrillas would be completed shortly. Many of the Reds have been on the island since the war with Japan.

Meanwhile the Nationalist government proclaimed that South on the south Hainan coast was open to trade. South also known as Sanya and Yulin is the site of the biggest air base in Hainan. It was built by the Japanese.

I Love My Doctor

By Evelyn Barkins

XXV

THE very next morning after John's appointment was confirmed and just four weeks after the family confab was the day of our sixth monthly wedding anniversary.

What a special day!

My first disappointment came with the absence of any greeting from John in the early morning.

Could he have forgotten? The traitorous thought came unbidden into my mind as I made the bed and I tried to banish it quickly as if I had been caught harboring fugitives from a chain gang in my cellar.

What's the matter dear?" John asked anxiously as I all but dumped his coffee in his lap.

"Nothing," I replied tartly.

When the time came to leave for school I offered my cheek to John as if it were only a cardboard facsimile of the same and was furiously enraged when he didn't even notice the difference.

I arrived home in time for office hours and after a hurried sandwich in the kitchen went right to work.

This is what I really am," I raved inwardly as I smiled sweetly at Mrs. Gislone's twins and commented cheerfully on Mr. Hansen's fractured foot. "A slave in his house! Someone to work for him!"

What on earth's the matter?" John whispered from time to time.

"What happened?"

But I was set on dying for my cause. "Nothing," I snarled.

Unfortunately it was a very busy day. Following afternoon hours, John had to rush out on some calls. He phoned finally from the hospital to say he was detained on a ward case and would eat there so I needn't wait dinner. "As if I want dinner!" I thought.

It wasn't until after evening hours, about 9 o'clock, that we ultimately had a chance to talk.

"Now," said John firmly, cor-and Agnes were seated on the couch each looking very much like the whale must have after he swallowed Jonah.

"We've got something to tell you," Bob said with suppressed excitement and my apathy lifted a little.

Watching the expression of pleased surprise on Bob's face now I asked, "You don't really mean you're getting a wife?" I paused in astonishment.

"Married," they both concluded. "We are."

"And soon," said Agnes. Her face was flushed and prettier than before. There was a new confidence and happiness in her voice and she seemed to have acquired the courage to use it. "I'm not going to let my change of mind," she laughed gaily, "out with a hint of serious purpose in her jest. 'He might get away'."

Bob grinned self-consciously, while I whispered to John, "Close your mouth." Then the proper young man said, "Now Aggie you know I'm stuck for good" in so fatuous a tone that even I gasped.

Then Agnes said, "We wanted you two to be the first to know, except for our families of course, because—well, you've both been kind of an inspiration for us right along."

Just before they left, Agnes turned back to me impulsively and said, "I hope that Bob and I will be as happy as you and John."

I was obviously emotionally overcome by this final remark but not in the way Agnes thought. "Ah if you only knew!" I felt like saying like the disillusioned woman of the world I now knew myself to be. But John hurried forward and spoke before any evidence of my demoralization could be noticed. "I hope you will be very happy Agnes," he said a little sadly and closed the door.

After their departure the argumentative wind was primarily out of my sails and it seemed definitely awkward to return, at this point to the scene of the crime.

"Well," said John to my staff back, "Imagine that!"

Rep. Velde Would Invoke T-H Law In Coal Dispute

Washington, Jan. 18—(AP)—Rep. Velde (R-Ill.) said yesterday he believed the striking coal miners should be forced back to their jobs by a Taft-Hartley law injunction, if necessary.

He made the statement to a delegation from Peoria, Ill., who came here to seek action which would assure adequate fuel supplies for the Peoria area which spokesmen said is critically short of coal.

Ridgely Otton, Mrs. F. H. Upendahl and the Rev. H. R. Zager told Velde and Senator Lucas (D-Ill.) they believed the injunction provisions of the Taft-Hartley law should be applied. They said coal is being rationed to homes, institutions and industries in Peoria and that two of the city's largest factories will be forced to close down soon unless more coal becomes available. They said the factories are the Caterpillar

Tractor and Le Tourneau plants. The delegation also presented its views to John R. Steelman, a presidential assistant.

The average American ate 156 pounds of meat in 1948.

Entombed Miner Dead, Is Belief

Mahanoy City, Pa., Jan. 18—(AP)—Hopes that a 25-year-old miner entombed since last Friday would be found alive had all but vanished today as rescue workers neared the bottom of a 120-foot shaft.

Rescuers, hacking their way through an anthracite vein alongside the debris that filled the shaft on Broad mountain, were within only a few feet of where they expected to find the coal car of Edward Burda.

But as they inched closer there were no signs of the trapped miner, whose brother, Joseph, 30, was rescued after 40 hours of digging. Another brother, Casimir, 32, jumped clear as the cave-in started.

Even if Burda escaped death from the rock fall rescue workers pointed out it was almost "impossible" that he could have survived for any length of time because of the lack of oxygen.

Remember Wallace Reid? He Died 27 Years Ago Today!!

By BOB THOMAS
Hollywood, Jan. 18—(AP)—Probably no more than a handful of people will recall the 27th anniversary of Wallace Reid's death today. But it was an event that shook Hollywood to its roots. Wally Reid, a slim but rugged young man with a whimsical smile and a charming manner, was a brilliant star of the silent era. He died a his peak—in the midst of a dope scandal.

Never Cared About Acting
Reid never cared much about acting. Born in St. Louis, he became a reporter, civil engineer, cowboy and editor of a motoring magazine. He went into vaudeville and drifted to the movie studios in New York in 1910. Fame had snared the actor after he appeared in a fight scene in "Birth of a Nation." He became a sensation and starred in picture after picture. Then fortune began to swing against him.

He suffered a severe gash in the head while making a picture in New York. But he continued making eight pictures a year and living even faster. Late in 1922, his studio announced that he was sick from "overwork and a bad case of Kleig eyes."

Then the storm broke. It was revealed that dope was the real reason for the illness.

'Rocked the Nation'
The scandal rocked the nation. Ministers were up in arms. Reid tried to start a picture, but had to be replaced by Jack Holt. A pitiful shadow of his former self, he slipped from 150 pounds to 120.

After six weeks of illness, he murmured "Tell them, Mama, I have won my fight—that I have come back." Then he fell into a lasting sleep on Jan. 18, 1923.

A friend wrote the epitaph: "Wally has done more in his 31 years than a dozen actors would do in a lifetime."

Find Salesman Caused Death Of His Lover

Chicago, Jan. 18—(AP)—A door-to-door salesman who wooed a young Missouri girl was convicted last night of murdering after a seven-year illicit romance.

A criminal court jury found Harvey McDonald, 35, guilty of murdering Joan Vestal, 24, last April 3 and fixed his punishment at 14 years imprisonment, the state's minimum sentence for the crime. The prosecution had asked the death penalty.

Fathered Her Children
McDonald, married and the father of six children by his wife, told the jury that he met Miss Vestal, then 17, shortly after her arrival in Chicago from Bevier, Mo., and that during their seven year romance she bore him two children. One child was given in adoption, the other and younger, is living with Miss Vestal's mother in Bevier.

The defendant testified that the shooting was accidental. He said

Miss Vestal actually shot herself as he struggled with her for a gun in her apartment.

McDonald's wife, Grace, 34, stood by her husband at the trial. She told the jury she blamed herself "for this terrible thing. I could have gone out with him more. He asked me over and over to go. I was always too tired from caring for the children and doing the housework."

Daughter Screams
She was in the courtroom with their eldest children, Carol, 15, and Robert, 13, when the verdict was returned. Carol was screaming and Mrs. McDonald was sobbing as they were ushered out.

The woman told newsmen she would continue the fight to free her husband.

McDonald, a former insurance salesman, slumped in his chair when the verdict was read. The jury deliberated the case four hours and 20 minutes.

Awful Possibilities of the New H-Bomb Causes Quarrel In Congress and Speculation

By ELTON C. FAY
Associated Press Military Reporter
Washington, Jan. 18—(AP)—Lawmakers concerned about the awful possibilities of an "H-bomb"—maybe a thousand times as ruinous as an A-bomb—are due to get the military's view on it tomorrow.

Some conservative estimates rate such a hydrogen bomb as "only" twice as powerful as the city-smashing atomic bomb.

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, the nation's top military man, is expected to testify before the senate-house atomic energy committee at that time, behind locked doors.

Quarrel Hinted
An undercover quarrel over what to do about making, or not making, a super-destructive bomb powered by hydrogen already has the capital upset.

The atomic committee finds itself in the middle of the controversy. It has asked defense, diplomatic and atomic experts to give their advice. Some experts from the Atomic Energy Commission were on its list for a private session this afternoon.

Up until now the argument has gone on in the top-secret levels of the administration and congress. It has now become so bitter and the factors involved so fundamental that some of the participants are inclined to bring the row out before the public. The big, and necessarily long, question is this: Here's Question

Should the United States embark on the making of a new weapon which could kill many times the 78,000 who died when a relatively old and inferior atomic bomb was dropped on the Japanese city of Hiroshima, and perhaps destroy everything living or standing on hundreds of square miles of land?

In the conservative camp are some scientists who compute the release of energy from a hydrogen bomb at about twice that released in the explosion of a uranium-type bomb.

Over on the other side are people who talk of a bomb 1,000 times as powerful as present atomic weapons, whose area of destruction would reach out over a 40-mile radius instead of the two-mile circle of destruction for the Hiroshima bomb.

In addition to the greatly boosted blast from an "H-bomb" (blast is the force which knocks down structures and kills people by concussion and flying wreckage), the weapon presumably would have much greater lethal effect in radiation and thermal (heat) features, especially the latter.

Vet Dies Unaware He Fathered Girl

Pekin, Ill., Jan. 18—(AP)—A 34-year-old veteran of World War II died in the hospital at Dwight last night without knowing he had become the father of a girl.

Just two hours before Maurice Leonard died in the veterans hospital the baby was born to his wife, Jeanette, in Pekin Public hospital.

Leonard, who had been in the hospital, suffered a stroke last night and never regained consciousness.

The couple had two other children.

Widowed Father of 6 Children Kills Self

Pekin, Ill., Jan. 18—(AP)—A widowed father of six children shot himself fatally through the heart last night after declaring in a tavern that his gun was "going to cause some excitement."

Donald Wright, 40, an employee of the Corn Products Refining Company, resisted the efforts of a bartender to wrest a .16 gauge shotgun from him and pulled the trigger. Six persons witnessed the shooting.

Wright's wife died eight months ago.

Mrs. Glenn Frank Takes Real Sock at Frats, Sororities In New Article for 'Pageant'

Mrs. Glenn Frank, widow of the late president of the University of Wisconsin, took a Sunday punch at fraternities and sororities in the February issue of "Pageant" magazine.

A former sorority member herself, Mrs. Frank is widely known in Dixon, numbering among her close friends the publisher of The Dixon Telegraph.

Four years ago Mrs. Frank called for the abolition of the "Greeks," as they're called on campus.

Article Reprinted

She received 5,000 letters. Her article, moreover, was reprinted in several textbooks and anthologies used in universities.

A member of the oldest sorority in America, Pi Beta Phi, Mrs. Frank was "kicked out" of her society because of an alleged "disloyalty." In her current article, "Citadels of Snobbery," Mrs. Frank said she was called everything from "ill-bred to Judas Iscariot" for her stand against what she dubbed "undemocratic societies."

Mrs. Frank wrote the article at the request of the editors of Pageant, who asked for an up-to-date report on sororities and fraternities.

No Teapot Tempest

She admitted candidly that name-calling didn't bother her, but she added:

"What does disturb me is the general public's feeling that this fraternity-sorority battle is just a tempest in a teapot."

Mrs. Frank charged that the public dismissed the issue with three arguments. (1) There will always be exclusive cliques. (2) Those who worry about the Greeks are not worth worrying about. And (3) that GIs reduced the importance of the Greeks.

Although she acknowledged partial truths in all the arguments, she said the importance of societies on campus cannot be dismissed by those who can't remember how important it was to them.

On the question of whether the Greeks were important, she quoted from one of the 5,000 letters that greeted her first attack on "Citadels of Snobbery":

"By all standards I'm considered a successful man. I have a wonderful family, a home and a good business. But long ago, the fraternity that took my pal in and left me out because I lived on the wrong side of the tracks in our home town, did something to me. . . I wouldn't want my wife and children to know how much it hurt."

Tragedy For Girls

On the perennial problem of sensitive girls who are not pledged by the sorority they want to join, Mrs. Frank wrote:

"Being left out by her own age group seems to be her life's supreme tragedy."

Mrs. Frank pointed to questions on a "recommendation blank" sent out by sororities to alumnae. She said questions concerning the religion of the person involved and the maiden name of her mother smacked of Hitler seeking traces of Jewish blood.

She said that while she was "thrilled" with her own sorority life, she explained that "if such advantages for the few are had at the expense of the many, then the price is too great."

She said the "privileged" themselves pay—"in acquiring a calculated snobbery or a false sense of superiority which will serve them ill in real life."

Like A Disease

The former first lady of the University of Wisconsin campus said parents wouldn't hesitate to stamp out a physical disease on campus, and then called the Greeks an evil "affecting minds and spirits."

Mrs. Frank concluded that the only way "to wipe out fraternities and sororities is by legislative act."

To give baked apples a luscious look, sprinkle the tops with a little granulated sugar and place under the broiler for a few minutes.

Army Planning New Reserve Program

Washington, Jan. 18—(AP)—The army announced today that it is planning a new Reserve Corps program designed to turn out more trained fighting men—at less cost to the government.

Secretary of The Army Gray said the new program aims at a "reservable" organized reserve of 625,000. It will replace a program begun in 1945 that called for 1,000,000 organized reserves, but had produced only 250,000 up to last Nov. 30, Gray said.

The army secretary said the new plan will cost about $153,000,000 annually compared to the $369,000,000 estimated for the organization set up at the end of the war.

Highway Deaths in State on Decrease

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 18—(AP)—Illinois highway traffic fatalities numbered 1,781 during last year, a drop of eight percent from the 1,939 deaths in 1948.

The State Highway Division said yesterday the 1949 toll represented the greatest percentage reduction from a preceding year since 1935. Only during World War II, under drastic curtailment of civilian automobile travel, were comparably lower death rates recorded, the department said.

A total of 192 fatalities were counted last month, a 10 percent increase over December, 1948.

Another Town Tosses 'Blue' Laws Off Book

Sparta, Ill., Jan. 18—(AP)—It will be legal soon to attend a movie in Sparta on Sunday.

Voters decided that yesterday in a special election which knocked out a 122-year-old ban against Sunday entertainment.

The young, liberal-minded element in this town of 4,200 was encouraged by the vote—1,067 to 641. Ad so was the owner of the community's lone theater, who announced he would get to work on plans for a new movie house.

Sunday operation of pool halls, bowling alleys, public dance halls and carnivals also will be legal as soon as the blue law is officially wiped off the books.

The Sunday ban was the idea of strict Scotch Presbyterians who founded Sparta. There was no challenge until 1932, when the theater opened for Sunday shows.

The resulting clamor led to an election that turned custom into law the following year. The total vote then was 1,321—with the ordinance carrying by 100 votes.

Encouraged by the gripes of younger folks, the theater interests recently formed a Citizens' Committee to grab the Sunday trade that surrounding towns were

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

He allows very readily, that the eyes and footsteps of the master are things most salutary to the land.—Columella.

Third Term Yen By Presidents

Quiet reports are circulating that President Truman has decided to run for a third term. He is said to have told friends in his administration not to begin looking for jobs to take effect after 1952.

Few people expect Mr. Truman to admit his intention now, if he has it. There's too much political advantage in keeping everyone guessing.

But if he should run again it would be the strongest evidence yet of how greatly he has changed from the days in 1945 when he was telling the world he didn't want the job—that it had just been thrust upon him. It would be a sign that Mr. Truman has been bitten by a bug that seems to bite most presidents.

We have a popular notion that the third term never really became an issue until Franklin D. Roosevelt's time. But the historians say otherwise. According to Arthur M. Schlesinger, Sr., Harvard historian:

"It is hardly an exaggeration to say that since Jackson every incumbent who finished his second term has been an active or receptive aspirant for a third one; and in this respect there has been no distinction between the parties."

Grant wanted a third term in 1876, was discouraged from trying, but then came back and bid for the office again in 1880. Grover Cleveland, finishing his second go in 1896, neither confirmed nor denied ambition for another term. His enemies in the Democratic party effectively squelched any hopes he may have had.

Theodore Roosevelt, after expressly supporting the two-term tradition and bowing out to William Howard Taft in 1908, changed his mind and actively sought another term in 1912. Had Republicans united on him, he probably would have won.

Woodrow Wilson was an invalid in 1920, but historians are agreed he wanted a third term to vindicate his stand on the League of Nations. The right moment for him never came.

Though Calvin Coolidge appeared to many to remove himself completely by his "I do not choose to run" statement in 1928, numerous observers believe he actually was willing to be drafted for further White House duty. One intimate says he was gravely disappointed when the GOP convention named Herbert Hoover.

You can't explain this behavior among presidents simply by saying that, once kindled, ambition burns exceedingly bright. Historians see more to it than that.

They find that most presidents develop two worries: (1) that their "program" won't be finished unless they complete it themselves, and (2) that a man of true presidential stature can't be obtained to replace them. In other words, from the Olympian heights of the White House, all other candidates look less impressive than the incumbent. He comes to feel that he alone is qualified for the particular job to be done, that no one else can be trusted to carry on his "good work."

If Mr. Truman really is thinking seriously of another try in 1952, chances are that thoughts like these have at least crossed his mind. For they seem to go with the office.

Scientists have developed a fog machine able to make any kind of fog. They now hope to be able to learn enough about it to disperse it efficiently, to design fog lights and beacons of better visibility, and possibly even to develop fog screens for military purposes.

New Ways of Easing Labor Pains Reported Favorably

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.

Since about three million women in the United States have children each year, anything that can be done to increase the safety of childbirth or to lessen the pain involved in that process is of very great importance indeed. Great strides have already been made toward both these objectives. The dangers of childbirth have fallen greatly thanks to the conquest of "childbirth fever" and the greater knowledge of the management of other complications.

The pain and discomfort of childbirth have been attacked by a number of different methods. Today there are many anesthetics which can be given by breathing in, by vein, or by mouth and which, when promptly employed, make childbirth comparatively easy.

Another method which has received a great deal of attention is the use of an anesthetic injected into the lower part of the spine continuously during the latter stages of childbirth. This procedure, which is called "continuous caudal anesthesia," seems to be most helpful when properly given. It is not preferred by all obstetricians, however, some of whom have better results with other methods.

Another way of reducing the pain of childbirth which has received a great deal of attention in recent years is the method of physiological or natural childbirth described by Dr. Grantley Dick-

Voice of the People

FAVORS BIRTH CONTROL

Editor: Telegraph
Dixon, Illinois
Dear Sir:

In Korea, the writer has seen mothers dose ailing infants with pills rolled of cow dung. The pills were "blessed" by a native holyman and were supposed to work magic. The actual results accelerate an infant mortality that for years before World War I killed 60 of every 100 babies the first year.

Above is an example of Oriental sanitation. The masses are illiterate, superstitious, suspicious. Our Occidental technique in medicine must gradually penetrate the Orient. Can it not, however, result in greater misery by intensifying Oriental overpopulation? One hears talk about our responsibility to double Hindustan's life expectancy until it approaches Sweden's.

Parasite populationists believe what Asia first needs is the spread of birth-control knowledge. It has been suggested that, meantime, we should have a League of Low-Birthrate Nations. This would protect us from increasing pressure from high birthrate areas of overpopulation.

Very earnestly,
C. M. Goethe.

HE UNDERSTANDS OUR JOB

City Editor, The Telegraph
Dixon, Illinois

Dear Mr. Griffiths:

I write this letter as a practicing newspaperman visiting in Dixon for the past week.

I wish to commend you and your staff most heartily for your fearless objectivity in handling the recent Clink divorce case—despite the protests of several of your readers. These readers falsely assume that a newspaper's major function is to act as guardian and high potentate of the morals of the community it serves. Actually, the newspaper's job is to present all the news without fear or favor, bias or prejudice. The job of protecting morals is one for the church, school and home—not the newspaper.

These readers also assume falsely that they can remove the ugliness and cordiness of life by burying their heads in the sand ostrich-like. They are the same people who refuse to instruct their children about sex because it is "dirty" and "vulgar."

The only way the defects in the world gradually can be erased is if the people are aware that they exist. Knowledge is the first step in the creation of the better society all of us want. Therefore, the Telegraph should be praised vigorously for its effort to disseminate knowledge by printing the details of the Clink case accurately and objectively. Congratulations, Mr. Griffiths, and keep up the good work.

Sincerely,
Ben Berman,

Evanston, Ill.

BEUTLER GIVES HIMSELF AWAY

It takes courage to admire people openly. Craven minds tend to shy away from calling attention to the good points of others for fear of obscuring their own. Have you never heard a woman say, in a tone of thinly veiled contempt, "She's a rather pretty-looking little person," or "What a nice little dress you're wearing." Patronizing, belittling, damning with faint praise—don't you know such persons?

These are the women—and men, too—who believe that by patting others on the shoulder with a downward movement they will add enormously to their own stature. And all the time they're scared to death for fear someone will find out how unimportant they themselves are—as if everyone didn't know it! An inferiority sense that tries to escape from its self-torture by belittling others will tell tales every time. —Sarah Comstock.

HE CUT IT SHORT

When he was on the lecture platform Will Durant's speeches were rarely brief as to wordage; one exception, and it was undoubtedly the pithiest speech of his career, was at Kalamazoo, Michigan.

Mr. Durant sat on the lecture platform and listened to his introduction as the speaker of the evening. At least he listened for a while—the introduction rambled on for more than an hour. When he finally was escorted to the rostrum the tuning Mr. Durant set his lips and bowed. Then he spoke:

"Ladies and gentlemen, I have received a sum of money for speaking to you. You have paid a sum of money to hear me speak to you. I am now too tired to talk and you are too tired to listen. We shall consider this to have been my speech. Good evening."—Mary Aikins.

Wife Helped Him To Succeed

A young Texan decided to run for Congress. He had no money but he possessed another treasure beyond price—a wife who was willing and determined to fight by his side all the way up the ladder of success. Although she had a small son to rear, she brushed up on her shorthand and became his secretary. In Washington, she continued to type his letters and run his office, first because he could not afford to hire outside help, later because she had become indispensable to him.

Abundant Living

By
E. STANLEY JONES

Gal. 6:7-8; Rom. 1:19-20; 14:10.

THE FIVE STEPS OF SCIENCE

Can we take the same steps in verifying our knowledge of God as science takes in verifying its knowledge of things that can be weighed and measured? There are five steps in the scientific method: (1) the statement of the problem; (2) the picking out of the most likely hypothesis that will meet that problem; (3) experimentation with that hypothesis; (4) verifying the hypothesis on a wide scale; (5) a simple and humble sharing of verified results.

Can we take this fivefold method and apply it to the realm of value? First, the statement of the problem. The problem is how to live in a universe of this kind, and to live well. It is a moral universe, and it seems to take sides on moral questions. In this moral universe, we are free to choose, but not free to choose the results of our choosing—they are in hands other than ours. This moral universe is not something that we create out of our taboos and rules—it is something we discover; it is a "given." A father was explaining Newton's Law of Gravitation and how it held things together, but his son answered, "Well, Dad, what held things together before they passed this law?" Just as Newton did not pass the Law of Gravitation, but discovered it, so we do not pass the moral laws written in the institution of things; we discover them. And we must come to terms with the law of gravitation. If not, we shall be broken. We do not break these moral laws; they break us. If we run afoul of them, they will throw us back bleeding, broken, blighted things. These laws are color-blind. If the white man, the black man, the yellow man, or the brown man breaks them, he will be broken. And they are religion-blind. If the Christian or the agnostic breaks them, he will be broken. As Sophocles put it: "The unwritten laws of God that know not change, They are not of today nor yesterday, But live forever, nor can man assign When first they sprang to being."

GOD, I see I am free only to obey. I must come to terms with this law written in me and in the constitution of things. Help me this day to begin to find my freedom in obedience to Thee. Show me how to begin. Amen.

This Is YOUR Life!!

is something wrong somewhere. There is inefficiency in the management of your mind.

Man is made to be both useful and happy. If you are not happy and helpful, you are either being short-changed or are short-changing the world. —Thomas Dreier.

She Got The Seat

Two rather overdressed girls boarded a crowded bus, and one made a bet with the other that she could force the dignified old gentleman in the rear seat to give her his place. She pushed through the crowd and said to him:

"How do you do, Mr. Brown! Fancy meeting you on a bus! I'm so glad to see you—you're almost a stranger. My goodness, but I'm tired."

The old gentleman glanced up at the young woman he had never seen before. He rose and said in a voice audible to every passenger on the bus:

"Do sit down, then, Mary. I don't often see you out on washdays—no wonder you're tired. And, by the way, skip delivering our laundry next week. My wife is seeing the judge Monday about getting your husband a parole." —Frances Rodman.

The reason most people don't recognize opportunity is that it's usually going around disguised as work. —Tom Clifford.

A Modern Fable

Whether he discoursed on the Dow Jones theory or the love life of a frog, I do not recall, I do know that when I made a sales call on him in his Wall Street office I did not utter a word from the moment I said "Hello, Mr. Hopkins" until I said "Mr. Hopkins, good-by." He talked for one solid hour while I shut up like a clam. A monk sworn to silence could have been no quieter. Finally, feeling that I had wasted my time, I took my departure.

A week later a friendly competitor said to me, "Hopkins tells me you are going to get all his business." Surprised, I asked, "How come? I never mentioned a contract to him."

"You talked him into it," my competitor replied. "He said you were the most brilliant conversationalist he had ever met!"

Inadvertently I had stumbled on a basic truth. The lion may be King of Beasts, but the clam is not without honor in nature's scheme of things. —Payson Jones.

The Woman's Viewpoint

Woman is, by nature, idealistic and romantic. She endows the man of her choice with such fine qualities of character and superiority that she often wonders how it ever happened that she could be fortunate enough to win such a paragon. When woman's love is sincere she is ready and willing to cooperate, to subserve her personality, to change her habits and points of view—in short, to surrender almost everything she holds dear—in order to be a good wife and make her man happy. However, she also expects, and with justice, that the man bend a little and try to cooperate himself. —Louis E. Blach.

Dress The Part

Whether you're a doctor, lawyer, fireman, or Indian chief, people are daily being influenced by your clothes. If you look your role—if you look successful—it automatically inspires confidence in the other fellow. Every day your clothes are either selling you or selling you down the river. —Elmer Wheeler.

Know When to Freeze Pack

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY
America's Card Authority

One of the big problems in Canasta is to know when to freeze the pack. There are many players who habitually throw down a deuce and freeze the pack at random, while others never do so.

In Oswald Jacoby's new book entitled "Complete Canasta," published by Doubleday & Company of New York, he gives excellent guidance on this feature of the game. On the subject of early freezes, Mr. Jacoby says:

"When you freeze the pack early in the play of a hand you have little reason to expect that the hand will end quickly. It is very likely that one side or the other will get the pile, and you must have especially good reason to expect that the winning side will be yours. This is a particularly bad time to freeze the pack on general principles or as a desperate measure."

"The pack is sometimes frozen early by the accident of the deal, but when it is frozen deliberately at this stage of the game, the wild card is usually discarded by the side that has not made its initial meld against opponents who have. In this situation, the freeze is not merely an attempt to restore equal chances of getting the discard pile, but is an attempt to squeeze opponents who have depleted their hands."

"For example, suppose your opponents need 120 points for their initial meld. After a few rounds of play one of them melds six or seven cards, and the other adds three or four cards to his partner's melds. If the discard pile remains untouched through all this, your side may be in excellent position to freeze it."

"This excellence of the position is a direct result of the fact that your side holds more cards than the opponents. Since they have fewer cards, they can accumulate fewer pairs, and they therefore have a smaller chance to get the pile. They also have greater difficulty in discarding, so that your side has an increased chance to get the pile."

"Sometimes such a freeze is advisable even when only one of the opponents has melded. For example, suppose both sides need 120 points and that after several rounds the player at your right makes the initial meld with:

Joker-10-10-8-2-2

"After he has made his discard he holds only four cards. Whenever an opponent depletes his hand so radically, you should consider the possibility of freezing the pack. You may decide against it, but you should think about it anyway."

In the same section of the book Mr. Jacoby explains late defensive freezes in a clear and concise manner. He says:

"After both sides have melded, you may decide to freeze the pack in the hope that the deal will come to an end before either side takes the pile. This occurs most typically when both opponents have melded down to a few cards and you have reason to suspect that at least one of them has a fair or good play for out."

"If you let them take a large discard pile in such a situation, they will take it and prolong the game. If you freeze the pile, one of them will soon meld out. The latter course will almost surely be the cheaper one."

Mr. McKenney is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

Some additional facts are revealed on how the Lend-Lease Bill was drawn

New York, Jan. 18—I have quoted excerpts from Henry Morgenthau's testimony before the senate foreign relations committee, Jan. 28, 1911, denying that he knew who wrote the Lend-Lease Bill, although he had appointed two of his subordinates in the treasury to draft it and they did. This draft gave President Roosevelt power to wage war at his discretion without declarations of war by congress and in flagrant violation of the Constitution. As the late Charles A. Beard, the great historian and constitutional savant, wrote, its title should have been: "All provisions of law and the Constitution notwithstanding, an Act to place all the wealth and all the men and women of the United States at the free disposal of the president—"

Lend-lease was written by Ed Foley, then general counsel of the treasury, now undersecretary, and Oscar Cox, a new deal lawyer with an alert eye to the main chance. Cox was 36 years old. He intimates that he regrets that physical disqualifications made it impossible for him to offer his sword to his country. Since the war he has prospered as lawyer for manufacturers who found profitable business opportunities in war industries. In this practice, of course, his political standing has been no handicap. Usually he is assertive, not to say pushful. But when the senate was trying to find out who wrote lend-lease he was bashful. He kept a still tongue in his head.

Morgenthau's answers to Senator LaFollette and Senator Hiram Johnson were a shockingly evasive performance.

Senator Johnson wearily said: "So you cannot tell us the genesis of the bill or who was the principal scrivener who wrote it?" And Morgenthau replied, "That is correct. I think it was the product of many brains."

Finally Johnson asked flatly, "Wasn't the bill written by Mr. Foley?" And Morgenthau answered: "I do not think that is a correct statement."

Ed Foley was present. He did not stand forth. He is, of course, an officer of the court, a citizen and was an employee of the national government, not of Roosevelt or Morgenthau.

Senator Johnson also said: "The only purpose of these questions is to find out if there is one individual to whom we may appeal for the construction of various provisions of the bill."

A Slippery Reply

Morgenthau made the slippery reply: "I honestly do not believe there was any one person." There were "actually" two persons, both of them then present.

In his final book, Beard pounced on the admission by Morgenthau in his published diary that Foley and Cox wrote lend-lease. There was no quibbling now. Morgenthau wrote: "At noon, Jan. 2, my phone rang. It was the president. The green light was on. Ten minutes later, Ed Foley, my crack general counsel, and his bright assistant, Oscar Cox, were in my office. We discussed the requirements of the job and I asked for a draft by 10:30 the next morning. They fooled me. They had a draft ready by midnight the same day. I asked Foley for the truth. He said he and Cox drew the bill on a Thursday afternoon in an office in the treasury just down the hall from the one where we were sitting. I asked the reason for the secrecy."

He said: "We wanted to make it appear that the bill had been drawn by the legislative draftsman rather than downtown. We got the assignment from the president and we drew it overnight."

I asked: "Why did you want it to appear that it had been drawn on the Hill?"

"Oh," Foley said. "I suppose it was to avoid the impression that it was drawn by the administration."

"But it was drawn by the administration," I said.

"Oh, we worked over the draft with the legislative draftsman," Foley said. "We worked all day Sunday. We had a number of people there. We had Mr. McCloy from Stimson's office. We had Greenbaum, who was in Patterson's office."

John McCloy became president of others that will help him away from home.

THEY'RE EASY TO SPOT

The belief that good manners make a boy a sissy is held by too many parents today.

You can spot their young "tough guys" easily. They are the boys who act like hoodlums on buses, who never offer an older person a seat, who completely ignore their parents' friends, who tell their parents off whenever they feel it, who are insolent to their teachers.

There is nothing sissy about good manners. And most boys today could use a lot more training in manners than they are getting at home.

If you can't convince your husband of this fact any other way, you might try inviting a group of the worse mannered of your son's contemporaries over for an afternoon when your husband is to be at home and let them take over the place.

They'll convince him of the importance of good manners, even if you can't.

★ RUTH MILLETT ★

There's Nothing 'Sissy' About Well-Mannered Boys

"I want our thirteen-year-old son to grow up having good manners, but my husband won't back me up."

"When I remind him of little matters of courtesy his father says: 'What are you trying to do, make a sissy out of him?'"

"Is there anything sissy about good manners?" a frustrated mother asks me.

There certainly isn't—and your husband should not only back you up in trying to give your son the advantage of good manners, but he should be taking over part of the job of teaching his son the special courtesies that are expected of a man.

The boy who is taught at home when he is young to seat his mother at the table, to hold open doors for her, to do the little things his parents ask of him without grumbling, to speak to their friends when he comes into the house, to introduce the friends he brings home, etc., is gaining an ease of manner and a consideration for others that will help him away from home.

A committee of Mrs. Clyde Yount, Mrs. Leslie Larson, and Mrs. Kenneth Gross was appointed to audit the treasurer's books.

Preceding the business session, refreshments were served by Mrs. John Gray and her hospitality committee. Group singing was led by Mrs. W. E. Gronberg with Mrs. Weinrich at the piano.

Mrs. Omar Thomas, program chairman, introduced Donald Sholders, who gave a brief history of the newly formed historical society of the school of which he is the first president. The group is sponsored by Mrs. Weinrich and Mrs. Swim, 7th grade teachers. Mrs. Weinrich showed slides which she and Mrs. Swim had prepared of the history of Lee county and Dixon. The slides included many items of interest of Dixon's earliest history showing that Illinois went through hundreds of changes before Father Dixon came here in 1830. She ended with a plea for any pictures or books of historical interest no longer wanted by the owner. The historical society would appreciate adding to its already growing supply.

Miss Jeanie Randall concluded the program with a piano solo, "Coasting" by Burligh. Miss Lois Sheffield's second grade won the attendance award.

Pupils Visit Museum Here

Now that the Christmas season is over the first of numerous school classes to make a spring trek to the Lee County Historical museum at the Loveland Community House arrived last week. Dozens of young pupils from rural schools as well as from Dixon come to the museum each spring.

Mrs. Marie Cortright with her third grade from Woodworth school accompanied by Miss Esther Barton, principal, had the distinction of being the first class of the season. Their special interest was in the marine life exhibit. They studied both the shell collection and fossils.

Thursday - Friday
The museum is open each Thursday and Friday afternoon from 1 until 5 and at other times by special appointment either with Mrs. J. B. Lennon, curator of the museum, or through Mrs. Mary Downing, director of the Loveland Community House.

city and outlying districts during the night running down a number of tips that proved worthless.

Shortly after the holdup, police chased at break-neck speed a five-passenger black Cadillac sedan thought to be the getaway car. They lost it in the city's west Roxbury district.

Plates Stolen
Police believed the car, bearing stolen registration plates, headed for Providence, R. I. The plates were stolen in Boston last week.

"It's very obvious," Police Supt. Edward Fallon said, "that these men used a master key to open all those doors." The gunmen went through six locked doors before reaching the vault where they cowed the five employees.

While husky patrolmen toured the city's underworld spots picking up suspects, alarms sounded descriptions of the holdupmen along the eastern seaboard.

Eleven men were taken to headquarters for questioning. No charges were placed against them.

Descriptions Vary
Descriptions of the robbers by witnesses varied. The best indicated that all were about five feet, nine inches, weighing approximately 180 pounds.

Six wore rubbers, the seventh crepe-soled shoes. The purpose of these was to kill off sound as the desperadoes headed into the building.

No descriptions were obtained of the man, or men, who waited outside the garage to steer the getaway.

All police division commanders were ordered to pick up every employee who had served time for armed robbery, along with all known holdupmen.

Vacations Cancelled
All vacationing and off-duty state police troopers and detectives were called back to work by State Commissioner of Public Safety John F. Strokes.

Police said the desperadoes apparently left the additional million behind because they were not prepared for such an enormous haul.

Reaching the wire enclosed vault room unobserved, one of the gunmen shouted.

"Open up. This is a stickup. Don't give us any trouble."

Several of the robbers moved quickly into the room, scooped the money, all in paper bags, from the carts in the open vault. They stuffed the loot into laundry bags and disappeared as quickly as they entered.

Several company shotguns were on a rack in the company office. The employees didn't have a chance to get near them before they were covered by the grotesquely masked robbers and trussed and gagged.

Police Capt. John D. Aherns of the special service squad said the robbery "was so neatly executed it must have been engineered by the cream of Boston's crime world."

Police received confusing reports as to the number of cars in which the men escaped. Some witnesses said one, bearing two confederates. Others said there were two cars.

A company spokesman said several employees have pass keys to doors in the garage and "possibly some former employees still have them."

The million dollars left behind included an $880,000 General Electric company payroll and $120,000 from Filene's, one of Boston's biggest department stores.

Firm Criticized
Fallon sharply criticized the firm for the "poor security it takes to protect such huge sums of money."

A representative of the National Security Corporation reported that the loss is "fully covered" by insurance.

Thomas B. Lloyd, head cashier, said he came out of the vault to find himself looking into the muzzles of seven guns.

"None of us had heard them approach because all of them—except one had shoes with crepe rubber soles—wore rubbers," he said. The men all wore navy-type peajackets, he said.

"They ordered us to lie face-down on the floor," Lloyd said. "As though they had planned it for a long time, they quickly tied our hands behind our backs and then tied our feet."

"Then they put strips of white masking tape over our mouths."

"While some were picking up the money bags, others went to a rack where we kept the pistols. They emptied the guns of bullets. When they had all the money they could carry, they beat it. The whole thing didn't take more than 20 minutes."

to take a more active part in governmental affairs.

Advise Congressmen
"Voting itself certainly is important—but that is only the starting point of the taxpayers' responsibility—they must let their representatives know their feelings on our way of living. If they don't, then they have no complaint coming," said Mr. Smith.

"Good government is not something that just happens. It is a job for every American citizen, those in and out of office," he cautioned.

Mr. Smith pointed out that businessmen generally exercise great care in their own dealings "but pay little or no attention to government except to gripe when things go wrong." He characterized this attitude to a man's regard for his own health, stating that when he seeks to take out additional health insurance and learns from the company doctor that his physical condition won't permit additional coverage, he begins to "take stock." The time to "take stock" in government is not when its deficit spending has it on the slippery road to misery, he emphasized.

The speaker drew a pointed comparison between a small businessman and the federal government.

"A small businessman cannot spend out the back door more than he is taking in at the front door and stay in business. And neither can the government," he said.

Mr. Smith predicted that the current session of congress will be the shortest in the past 20 years, "due to a congressional election year."

Major Issues In Congress
"Yet," he said, "they will be faced with several major issues of greatest importance, such as a revised farm program, federal aid to education, socialized medicine and a national health program. Congress will adjourn early and go home because 467 of its members are up for reelection and they want to go back and start campaigning."

Mr. Smith spent considerable time discussing the proposed Federal Education Bill now before congress. He stated that six states, New York, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and California, would have to foot 67% of the first 300 million dollars appropriated during the first year of the law if it is passed. (Incidentally it has been estimated that ultimately the bill would cost U. S. Taxpayers between five and six billion dollars each year.)

"In the State of Illinois, the taxpayers would be assessed $17.50 for every elementary, grade and high school pupil, yet you would get back only $5.00 per pupil," he said.

"This Federal Education Bill if passed would create the biggest of all the bureaus yet to come," he said. He ridiculed claims that the bill would (1) Equalize education for all and (2) Wipe out illiteracy as its proponents claim. Mr. Smith also stressed that not one penny of money that might be appropriated could be spent for school buildings or equipment.

Now is the time for the voters to put the brakes on the deficit spending spree, according to Mr. Smith. He indicated that at the present time the United States is spending one billion dollars every nine days.

"Just to give you an idea of what's going on," he said, "let me remind you that 21 years ago there were 570,000 federal civilian employees on the payroll and today there are more than 2,000,000."

He also stated that 21 million Americans are receiving federal funds in "one form or another." He also expressed fear that America may be headed down the road to Socialism such as England has "where a man can't even change jobs without government consent."

Mr. Smith stated that "a real test of appreciation of the American way of life" will come in the Ohio election when U. S. Sen. Robert Taft is up for reelection. He said that between the CIO, AFL and other unions, a political war chest of 13 million dollars has been raised among some 16 million union workers to defeat congress-

Civic Classes Visit Council Meeting Here

Civic classes from Dixon and North Central High schools sat in on a routine council meeting Tuesday night and watched the city fathers.

1. Take over the maintenance of the Memorial arch on Galena avenue constructed through the efforts of the American Legion post.

2. Adopt a resolution putting three municipal lots up for sale, with the proceeds—if they're high enough—going to cover the cost of housing equipment belonging to department of streets.

3. Prepare to ask for bids for publishing the revised ordinances of Dixon, the first revision since 1906.

4. Commend city police and firemen for their efficient work in rescuing the two boys who were stranded on ice floes in Rock river last Friday.

5. Preview plans submitted by Commissioner George Lindquist for altering city hall so as to make the best use of available space.

The Legion turned over $281 to the city for maintenance of Memorial arch. Tentatively, the council will use the Legion fund and the city general fund to pay running costs connected with the memorial.

The plans submitted by Commissioner Lindquist would provide for a shift of the mayor and city clerk's office from the second to the first floor. The parking meter repair room, now on the first floor, would be moved to the basement, according to the blueprints provided by Lindquist.

Other major changes would include a room for squad cars, space for another fire engine, and a new office for the chief of police.

Mayor J. Fred Hofmann told the council the city would be represented Jan. 24 at a hearing in Chicago when the Interstate Transit lines asks to suspend service on the last round-trip bus between Dixon and Rockford.

The mayor said that since only one or two passengers take the last bus, it was improbable that the city would oppose the bus company.

Byron Again Gets 'Speed Trap' Label

will honor bonds up to $500 for certain traffic offenses, Cooper said:

"I don't like that type of bond, the one on the card. I don't think they're pretty."

Cooper said all complaints about speed-traps in Byron come from CMC members. He added that he was defying the club and advising all the J. P.'s in Ogle county to follow suit.

The Byron justice also said he fined 80 motorists for speeding in 1949, explaining that the fine was usually "a $1 a mile for every mile over the limit."

Last summer The Telegraph received and aired complaints from Dixonites who charged Justice Cooper, Officer Grenda, and Byron with operating a speed-trap.

Cooper said the most recent case involving a CMC member was Thursday, when William Richter, a Chicago jewelry salesman, was arrested for speeding by G. M. Grenda, Byron's police officer.

Cooper asserted that Richter tried to give the policeman $5, and then raised it to $10, to let him off.

The justice quoted Grenda as saying, "Give it to the judge." Richter was fined $29. The salesman then drove to Rockford and filed a complaint with CMC. Justice Cooper said Richter got him out of bed at midnight Thursday and told him he was going to "raise some hell."

Cooper added that the traffic signs in and near Byron were installed under state highway supervision.

Damage Suits In Court Here Involve $2,500

Gnepentrog, Willow Creek; William D. Raub, Lee Center, and Maureen Hammel, Alto.

New $2,000 Suit
At the same time the Galentine-Boyd case opened, R. N. Ellsworth filed a $2,000 damage suit.

Through Warner and Warner, Ellsworth asked for $1,000 each from Lincoln Smith and James McClanahan, 602 College avenue, for damages suffered when two trucks collided on Rte. 30 in Whiteside county December 15, 1949.

According to Ellsworth, Smith was driving a truck owned by McClanahan on the left side of an icy road and hit his truck. Ellsworth said Merle A. Stackland was driving his truck when the accident occurred.

GENESEO, DIXON HIGH'S NCIC foe Friday night, has a 3-11 record for the season, and a 1-3 mark in the NCIC. But for 10 of their 14 games, the Maple Leafs have been minus two lettermen starters, Tom Donahue and Tom Duncan. They recently returned to the Geneseo lineup after being suspended by the IHSAA for a football incident.

BOTH WERE AWARDED gold footballs by the Chamber of Commerce following the football season—Donahue for being the most valuable lineman and Duncan likewise as a back. Unwittingly enough, picture publicity of the event got into the hands of the state athletic association authorities who immediately pounced on the two lads for an investigation. It was found that the emblems cost more than a $1.00 (the prescribed "gift" limit set by the IHSAA—otherwise you're a "pro"). Rev Millikin, head of the Geneseo school freely admitted the incident—confessed all, in other words. The boys, the school and the C. C. were quite unaware that a rule had been violated.

SO THE LADS have sweated it out for 10 games until they were "cleared" for the Rock Falls game last Friday. The Leafs almost dumped the Rockets in a 39-38 overtime game. The Maple Leafs have lost to Mendota, DeKalb and Rock Falls in the NCIC while winning an early-season game from Princeton. The Leafs are big, rugged, but hampered with lack of scoring. Their high score is 44 this year. Their zone defense is described as tough.

TEAMING WITH DONAHUE and Duncan will be two other seniors, John Bowman and Wayne Peterson, and a junior, Wilbur Flaming.

P. S. The IHSAA confiscated the gold footballs!

JUST BEFORE PRESS time for this column, the Dixon Legion was minus a game for Thursday night. Originally scheduled to play the Belvidere Nor-Bar A. C., the Nor-Bar management notified the Legion last night that five team members were hospitalized with food poisoning following an after-game lunch Monday night. The Legion management is frantically seeking another opponent for Thursday and it may be announced today.

COACH MAX PATRICK of Franklin Grove brings his Wildcats into Dixon Friday night for a game with the Duke junior varsity. That's an attraction for home fans while the local varsity is away. The tilt should be a ding-dong affair, too, since Franklin holds a 39-38 win over Coach Sam Owens' club in their first meeting. "Pat" is now operating with four underclassmen and one senior. He recently elevated Larry McMillan, a sophomore, to a berth on the starting five. Franklin has won more games thus far this season than the TOTAL wins of the previous two seasons. So the skies are clearing for the Wildcats.

Bill Grove's Bulldogs Whip Lee Center Five

Paw Paw—(Special)—In a battle of the Bulldogs here last night, Coach Bill Grove's Paw Paw breed emerged 73-40 victors over a scrappy Lee Center five which didn't let go until the final half. "Jumpin' Joe" Jones, the Paw Paw scoring ace, regained his shooting form in scoring 10 goals and four three throws. Eight others of the Paw Paw cast rated the scoring column.

Lee Center, behind only 33-24 at the half, was unable to maintain the pace in the third and fourth quarters. Paw Paw's biggest edge came in the fourth.

Paw Paw also copped the preliminary engagement, 49-20.

Amboy, leading at the first quarter, was outscored quite decidedly in the second and third periods.

Elmo Litts with seven goals was the Amboy stand-out, while Coach Don Hennessey's two forwards, Hellem and Reed, were the punch producers for Community.

Polo won the trash-soph tilt, however, scoring an overwhelming 64-35 triumph.

The varsity was behind 15-14 at the end of the first quarter shell. The Steamers edged them quite decidedly in the second and third periods, however.

Tom Atchison, with nine points, and Bill Coffman and Ronald Messer with seven each, paced Coach Boh Breckenridge's crew.

Downstate Case Dispute Will Be Heard by IHSAA

Chicago, Jan. 18—(AP)—Reports of a disturbance at an Elkhartville high school basketball game will be aired by state association officials tomorrow at Carbondale.

The disturbance, including some violence, was reported by officials of Trico at Ava and Elkhartville high schools after their Dec. 16 game. It resulted from disagreement over an official's decision.

Albert Willis, executive secretary of Chicago, and Floyd Smith of Benton, president of the Illinois High School Association, will meet at 4:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Roberts hotel in Carbondale with principals of the two schools and with the game's officials.

The Dixon Legion Squad, One of Northern Illinois' Finest

They're tops—Hailed as one of the best amateur basketball clubs ever to represent Dixon, the Legion is awaiting its showdown game with the Mt. Morris Kable Kolts Sunday at Mt. Morris. The winner may well wind up as champion of the Western division of the A. A. U. league. The Legion was scheduled to meet the Belvidere Nor-Bar club at Dixon Thursday but that game has been cancelled. Efforts are being made to procure another suitable opponent for the Thursday date. Front row—Herb O'Donnell, Gene Burroughs, Roger Bivins, Rich Arnould, Walter Knack, George Wallace. Back row—Coach John (Red) Flanagan, Bill Witzleb, Bob Torman, Bob Marshall, Johnny Loftus and Wayne Curran.

The Brothers Iba Will Match Cage Wits on Saturday

Tulsa, Okla., Jan. 18—(AP)—The Brothers Iba—Henry and Clarence—will face each other across court for the first time at a basketball game Saturday night.

Hank, Oklahoma A. & M.'s roundball wizard, brings the Aggies here to battle little brother's Tulsa university club, a perennial Missouri Valley underdog whose bite is pretty sharp this season. This is Clarence's first season as Hurricane coach.

Clarence once played under Henry when the latter coached the Maryville, Mo., State Teachers. The Iba clan has four basketball coaches in all.

Younger brother Earl practices the profession at Panhandle A. & M., Goodwell, Okla., and Howard coaches St. Joseph, Mo., Central high school.

Small wonder that their mother, living in Easton, Mo., and a close follower of the game, has let it be known the Aggie-Tulsa contest is one she doesn't care to see because "someone will have to lose."

The Aggies, current winners of nine games out of 13, are defensively No. 2 in the nation, holding the opposition to 39.4 points per start.

The only team with a better mark is Tulsa—38.2.

The younger Iba, although not overawed, still nurses no illusions. "They've got us overpowered in every department," he says.

Henry, who scouted the Hurricane's 44-50 loss to Drake last week, remarked that "it won't be long until Tulsa becomes basketball minded."

DePaul Dumps St. Johns in Night of Upsets

New York, Jan. 18—(AP)—Except for unbeaten Holy Cross and Duquesne, last night was upset night in college basketball.

Holy Cross, ranked first in this week's Associated Press poll, chalked up its 11th straight win with an 84-56 victory over previously unbeaten Providence.

Duquesne, ranked sixth, made it 13 in a row by taking its Pennsylvania rival, Waynesburg, 57-48.

However, three of the top five, St. Johns of Brooklyn, Long Island and Kentucky, met defeat in major upsets.

St. Johns, ranked second after holding the No. 1 spot for two weeks, fell before DePaul, 74-68. Long Island, ranked third, was tripped by North Carolina State, 55-52 and Kentucky, No. five, took a 71-60 trouncing from Georgia.

Ottawa of NCIC Wins No. 12; Wood River Crushes Hillsboro

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 18—(AP)—Wood River crushed Hillsboro 71-48 in the big game of the downstate Illinois prep basketball program last night.

The victory was Wood River's 13th of the season and seventh in a row, against a single defeat. The loss was Hillsboro's second in 14 contests. Wood River is ranked 14th and Hillsboro seventh in the Associated Press poll to size up state title prospects.

Elsewhere, Centralia was upset 48-47 by Harrisburg, but Flora, Ottawa and Murphysboro registered new triumphs.

Once beaten Flora's 15th straight success was a 53-48 decision over Lawrenceville. Ottawa turned Jack Marquette of Ottawa 49-40 for its 12th victory in 13 tilts. Murphysboro whipped Anna-Jonesboro 57-24 and now owns nine wins compared with two reverses.

Olympians, Lakers Maintain Pace in Pro Cage Battling

(By the Associated Press)
The Central and Western division races in the National Basketball Association are so close that the title contenders can't take any chances.

The Olympians walloped the Denver Nuggets, 101-81, to move a full game ahead of Anderson in the Western scramble. Anderson was idle.

The Lakers, paced by Big George Mikan, thumped the Boston Celtics, 105-79, to move into a virtual tie with the idle Rochester Royals for top place in the Central division.

Mikan, who leads the league's individual scorers, shoved in 22 more points to boost his season's total to 1,097. Jim Pollard was right behind him with 21. George Kaftan led the Celtics with 16.

U. S. Bureau of Reclamation hydroelectric plants turned out 19,000,000,000 kilowatts in 1948.

Ashton Opens Play Tonight In Rt. 72 Meet

Stillman Valley—(Special)—Byron and Forrester survived first round play in the Rt. 72 conference tournament which began here last night.

Byron, with Big Jerry Weaver pouring in 37 points, posted a 83-49 victory over Leaf River, while Forrester handed Monroe Center a 66-65 defeat. Forrester's victory came on Lloyd Ruthe's goal with 15 seconds remaining.

Tonight's tournament play shifts to Byron where Winnebago takes on Pecatonica in the 7 p. m. encounter and Coach Paul Craft's Ashton Aces meets Stillman Valley at 8:30 p. m.

Byron meets Forrester in the first semi-final match. That will be played Thursday on the Ashton floor.

Junior Sportsmen To Elect Officers

Junior Sportsman's club members will elect officers when they meet Thursday night at the armory.

In addition there will be rifle instruction and, if weather permits, instruction on the feeding of birds and wildlife.

Jewell Ens, Former Pirate Boss, Dies

Syracuse, N. Y., Jan. 18—(AP)—Jewel Ens, 60, manager of the Syracuse Chiefs and former leader of the Pittsburgh Pirates, died last night of pneumonia.

The veteran baseball manager of the International league team had been critically ill for the last 11 days.

Provisions of Code Invoked Against Sinners

Chicago, Jan. 18—(AP)—The National Intercollegiate Athletic Conference set about proving today that it has teeth in its bite after all. It snapped back again at six violators of its sanity code—Virginia, Virginia Tech, Virginia Military Institute, Maryland, Boston College and Villanova.

They are barred from schedules and NCAA sponsored meets under the organization's constitution. It is as simple as that. At least, that is what the new NCAA president, Hugh C. Willett, of Southern California and secretary-treasurer, K. L. (Tug) Wilson, Big Ten commissioner, think.

It is all a matter of reminding NCAA members that they brush up on the constitution and abide by what it says in black and white—the "conditions and obligations of membership" clause. This requires that members schedule intercollegiate contests "only with institutions which conduct their athletic programs in conformity with the principles set forth in article three (The Sanity Code)."

After a stormy New York convention, last week, many observers wondered where the NCAA's teeth were. Seven schools were branded as code violators, a charge which they admitted. When it came down to voting about their expulsion, they survived by a margin of 25 ballots.

The seventh school, the Citadel, resigned from the NCAA. The others remained, declaring that the code, which strikes at recruiting, was "unworkable and impractical."

Willett and Wilson believe that although the so-called rebel schools retained membership, the vote certainly cannot be construed as giving them a clean bill of health.

Through a memorandum issued to members yesterday by the two officials, the six violators (The Citadel no longer a member) were viewed as schools without good standing in the NCAA and thus subject to automatic schedule banning under the constitution until such time as the compliance committee finds they are upholding the code.

Irish, Sooners Near Two-Year Football Pact

Norman, Okla., Jan. 18—(AP)—A football game thousands would have paid $100 for just an end zone seat last season will be up for decision in 1952.

That's when Notre Dame and Oklahoma, the nation's best teams in 1949, have agreed to inaugurate their home-and-home gridiron series.

The 1952 game will be played at Notre Dame, Nov. 8, the Irish journey here Sept. 26, 1953 to provide the Sooners with their most ambitious opening game in history.
